ATHLETES HELPING ATHLETES

Membership/enrollment: Open to all students/ anytime

Athletes Helping Athletes trains high school student-athletes to conduct workshops for elementary and middle school students on issues ranging from self-esteem and sportsmanship to bullying & teasing and substance abuse. In these workshops, student leaders discuss making proper decisions concerning high school parties and other social settings, and talk about the power and use of language in creating social status. The discussions are designed to be positive and proactive while raising awareness and providing options that would empower students to make right decisions.

Athletes Helping Athletes provides all the tools for student-athlete leaders', who work in teams, to adopt classes for the academic year.

SALT training prepares the student-athlete leaders to engage and manage the classroom, conduct "ice-breaker" exercises and talk about life-skills gained through participation in extracurricular activities. Further, each student-athlete leader is trained to relate a personal story relevant to a workshop topic that emphasizes life-skills and "real life" choices and decisions.

Additionally, they will be given the opportunity to attend amateur and/or professional theater presentations.

EARTH AND OUTDOORS CLUB

Membership/enrollment: Open to all students / anytime

The goals and objectives for the club are to foster the appreciation of the simple things in life that we often overlook because of the overwhelming pressure of technology and society. We have come so far so fast and not had time to look back. There was a time when Long Island was rural, stop lights were few and traffic was not an issue. Our open spaces are vanishing before our eyes. This club will allow you to see a few of the open spaces that remain relatively unchanged and in a native state. We hope to instill a sense of appreciation for what still remains. In 1991 the Long Island Chapter of the Nature Conservancy named eastern Long Island as one of a dozen "Last Great Places" in the western hemisphere.
