STEM Activities: Churning Butter, General Store & Growing Food!

Looking for a fun and educational activity during school break?

Join the educators at TVHS for drop-in mini history classes designed for children ages 7-10. Through hands-on activities, kids will explore life in early Setauket by churning butter the way it was done in colonial kitchens, learning about local women's history through the story of Lucy Hart and an interactive general store activity, and discovering how food was grown locally by planting seeds and designing their own garden.

Stop by during the listed times to experience history in a fun and engaging way!
